Intimacy in a script—whether emotional or physical—can be intimidating. So how can we normalize open communication and collaboration in the rehearsal room to make careers in theatre more sustainable?

In this workshop, led by Intimacy Advisor Aziza Gharib, participants will discuss what intimacy in theatre is, how to create a culture of consent, expectations for respecting boundaries, and resources to help folks advocate for themselves!

This workshop is open to Yale College students, and anyone involved in rehearsals for a live performance is strongly encouraged to attend.
